Are internet-only legal notices sufficient?

No. While the internet is clearly a useful resource, websites should not be used as the sole source of a legal notice.

Websites, whether controlled by a government body or a private firm, are not independent, archived, readily available or independently verified.

Newspaper legal notices fulfills all of those standards.

Are there different types of legal notices?

Simply put, there are two basic types - Warning Notices and Accountability Notices.

Warning notices inform you when government, or a private party authorized by the government, is about to do something that may affect your life, liberty or pursuit of happiness. Warning notices typically are published more than once over a certain period.

Accountability notices are designed to make sure citizens know details about their government. These notices generally are published one time, and are archived for everyone to see. Accountability is key to efficiency in government.

What makes public notices in newspapers superior to other forms of notices?

Public notices in newspapers are serendipitous. When readers page through a newspaper, they will find important public notice information they otherwise would not find anywhere else.

Rarely do consumers specifically search online for public notices.
