Newsprint is inherently superior to the internet for public notice because reading a newspaper is a serendipitous process.

We find things in newspapers we weren't expecting to see. On the internet, we search for specific information and ignore everything else.

Citizens continue to learn about vital civic matters from newspaper notices.

Documented examples of people taking action and alerting their community after reading a newspaper notice are reported on a regular basis.

Verifying publication is difficult-to-impossible on the web.

That's why the courts subject digital evidence to far greater scrutiny than evidence published in newspapers

Significant numbers of people in rural areas still lack high-speed internet access.

Those who are older than 65 or who have lower incomes or lack high-school diplomas are also cut off from the internet in far higher numbers than the average.

Moreover, the real digital divide for public notice is growing

due to the massive migration to smartphones and other small-screen digital devices

Governments aren't very good at publishing information on the internet.

Unlike newspaper publishers, public officials aren't compelled by the free market to operate effective websites.

ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF A PUBLIC NOTICE

Federal and state public notice statutes generally establish four fundamental criteria for a public notice.

Each of these elements are critical aspects of the checks and balances that public notice was designed to foster.

1. Accessible

Every citizen in the jurisdiction affected by the notice must have a realistic opportunity to read it

2. Archivable

Notices must be capable of being archived in a secure and publicly available format for the use of the judicial system, researchers and historians

3. Independent

Notices must be published by organizations independent of the government body or corporation whose plans or actions are the subject of the notice

4. Verifiable

There must be a way to verify that each notice was an original, unaltered notice and actually published in accordance with the law

Q&A

Who benefits from legal notices?

You do. Legal notices are required because a government body or corporation wants to take action that can affect individuals and the public at large.

When the government is about to change your life, or your property or assets are about to be taken, public notices in newspapers serve to alert those affected.

Are there different types of legal notices?

Simply put, there are two basic types - Warning Notices and Accountability Notices.

Warning notices inform you when government, or a private party authorized by the government, is about to do something that may affect your life, liberty or pursuit of happiness. Warning notices typically are published more than once over a certain period.

Accountability notices are designed to make sure citizens know details about their government. These notices generally are published one time, and are archived for everyone to see. Accountability is key to efficiency in government.

Are internet-only legal notices sufficient?

No. While the internet is clearly a useful resource, websites should not be used as the sole source of a legal notice.

Websites, whether controlled by a government body or a private firm, are not independent, archived, readily available or independently verified.

Newspaper legal notices fulfills all of those standards.

How much do legal notices cost?

The price for notices in the printed newspaper must include all costs for publishing the ad in print, on the newspaper's website and to www.floridapublicnotices.com.

The public is well-served by notices published in a community newspaper.
